A: On the error screen that pops up, it reads: The software was unable to install the update due to a failure. See the following information for troubleshooting: The current version does not match the version of the Microsoft .NET Framework. The current version is:. The following updates are required:. To install updates, try installing the.NET Framework updates from the Control Panel, see the.NET Framework article on how to download and install.NET Framework updates. You are seeing this message because the software could not install updates to the.NET Framework. Unfortunately, we cannot provide technical support for installing the.NET Framework. If this problem continues, the installation files for the update can be downloaded at The Microsoft.NET Framework is a set of libraries and programming APIs and it is required for a lot of applications to run properly. Every Microsoft Windows operating system since Windows 95 (not including Windows CE) has included the.NET Framework. The.NET Framework contains some libraries that allow simple components to access and process.NET APIs. The.NET Framework is also a component that is required by other applications to run. At one time, you had to manually install the.NET Framework through the Windows Add or Remove Programs applet. In more recent versions of Windows, the.NET Framework has become a part of the Windows Installer. Therefore, it has been installed automatically by Windows when you have installed other components. However, the.NET Framework is not installed by default with Windows XP and Windows Server 2003 because it takes up too much space. In this case, you have to install the.NET Framework manually through Windows Update. You can download the latest.NET Framework updates from Microsoft's Web site. According to the error message, your operating system is not properly set up to recognize the.NET Framework as an update. It needs to be installed and restarted. If you have more information, please post an edit to your question. Update That was not the issue. Someone uninstalled.NET Framework 4.6.1.
