It is a small book which contains various details like expenses, income and balance. It is used by the sellers also for their transactions. The seller uses this book to make their daily transactions by recording it in this small booklet. There are certain instructions given to the seller while recording these transactions in a Talapatra Nidhi. In the beginning, while opening a new business, a Talapatra Nidhi is given to each seller by the owner of that business. This helps the owners to know if their employees are exploiting them for personal gains or not. The book will contain various details like how many sellers and employees there are in the business and what their daily income and expenses are. The owner also uses this book to know the total expenses the business makes in a year. The owner needs to know this so that he can take necessary measures for its growth. He needs to know if any of the expenses made were unnecessary or not. The owner also informs that such details may help him take advantage of different tax laws.
